Great Reasons Us Will Unite Peace

Great Reasons Us Will Unite Peace

1 of us are quite aware of, and deeply worried by, the disturbing social and political situation of the world today, increasingly a place of violent conflict, hatred and brutal atrocities, committed even in the name of God and of religion. We know that no religion is immune from forms of emotional delusion or ideological extremism. This means it is especially attentive to every type of fundamentalism, whether religious or of any other kind. A delicate balance to combat violence perpetrated in the name of a religion, an ideology or an economic system, while also aiding religious freedom, intellectual freedom and individual freedoms. But there is another temptation which we must guard against, the simplistic reductionism which sees only good or evil; or, if you will, the righteous and sinners of a temporary world, with its open wounds which affect so many of our brothers and sisters, demands that we come to a point of polarization which would divide it into these two camps. We know that in the attempt to be freed of the evil, we can be tempted to feed the enemy within. To imitate the hatred and violence of tyrants and murderers is to take their place. That is something which you, as a people, reject. Our response must instead be one of hope, of peace and justice. We are asked to summon the courage and the intelligence to resolve today's many political and economic crises. Even in the developed world, the effects of unjust structures and actions are all too real. Our efforts must aim at restoring hope, righting wrongs, maintaining commitments, and thus promoting the well-being of individuals and of peoples. We must move forward together, as one, in a renewed spirit of fraternity and solidarity, offering generously for the common good. The challenges facing us today call for a renewal of that spirit of cooperation accomplished so much good throughout the history of the United States. The complexity, the gravity and the urgency of these challenges demand that we pool our resources and talents, and resolve to support one another, with respect for our differences and our convictions of conscience. Great Reasons Us Will Unite Peace

----- All of us are quite aware of, and deeply worried by, the disturbing social and political situation of the world today. Our world is increasingly a place of violent conflict, hatred and brutal atrocities, committed even in the name of God and of religion. We know that no religion is immune from forms of individual delusion or ideological extremism. This means that we must be especially attentive to every type of fundamentalism, whether religious or of any other kind. A delicate balance is required to combat violence perpetrated in the name of a religion, an ideology or an economic system, while also safeguarding religious freedom, intellectual freedom and individual freedoms. But there is another temptation which we must especially guard against: the simplistic reductionism which sees only good or evil; or, if you will, the righteous and sinners. The contemporary world, with its open wounds which affect so many of our brothers and sisters, demands that we confront every form of polarization which would divide it into these two camps. We know that in the attempt to be freed of the enemy without, we can be tempted to feed the enemy within. To imitate the hatred and violence of tyrants and murderers is the best way to take their place. That is something which you, as a people, reject. Our response must instead be one of hope and healing, of peace and justice. We are asked to summon the courage and the intelligence to resolve today's many geopolitical and economic crises. Even in the developed world, the effects of unjust structures and actions are all too apparent. Our efforts must aim at restoring hope, righting wrongs, maintaining commitments, and thus promoting the well-being of individuals and of peoples. We must move forward together, as one, in a renewed spirit of fraternity and solidarity, cooperating generously for the common good. The challenges facing us today call for a renewal of that spirit of cooperation, which has accomplished so much good throughout the history of the United States. The complexity, the gravity and the urgency of these challenges demand that we pool our resources and talents, and resolve to support one another, with respect for our differences and our convictions of conscience.
